SECTION 3: Nominee for consideration

The purpose and criteria for the Lifetime Contribution Award are as follows:

PURPOSE: The purpose of this award, is: To celebrate and honour those individuals who, over their career, have made substantial and outstanding contributions to the Canadian Tax Foundation and its purposes through their volunteer efforts and body of work over a number of years and to inspire and encourage others to contribute to the CTF.

CRITERIA: An individual given the award must have made substantial and outstanding contributions to the CTF and its purposes through their volunteer efforts and body of work over a number of years. These efforts could include:

- (i) participating on CTF conference committees;
- (ii) writing articles in the journal, newsletters, books and other CTF publications;
- (iii) serving as an editor of a CTF publication or on a CTF editorial board as a member;
- (iv) participating as a speaker, author and moderator at CTF annual, regional and special conferences;
- (v) other volunteer efforts that, in the view of the Selection Committee, are important;
- (vi) participating on the Board of Governors and CTF Committees; and
- (vii) involvement with other organizations and activities that further the purposes of the CTF.

The committee will also take into account the nominee's professional reputation, integrity and contributions to the broader tax community.

In any individual case, the weight to be given to any one type of contribution shall be determined by the Selection Committee.

The award may be given to an individual who was also an employee of the CTF but it is that individual's volunteer contribution which is to be reviewed, recognized and honoured.

The award may be given posthumously.

Please submit a short, written piece explaining why the nominee should be considered for the Lifetime Contribution award. Your response should not exceed 1,000 words. Information that exceeds this limit will not be reviewed. You may also include letters of support for the nominee.

Researchers for the Canadian Tax Foundation will also provide the Selection Committee with background material on certain of the nominee's contributions to the CTF.

Nomination deadline: July 31, 2021

Nomination forms, along with supporting documents such as letters of support, can be submitted electronically to Tiffany Foster (tfoster@ctf.ca).
